

Committed to More™

What can 15 Million Trees Do?*

As part of its Global Forestry Initiative, UPS supports organizations like The Nature Conservancy, Earth Day Network, Arbor Day Foundation, WWF, and the National Park Foundation. We've already planted more than 15 million trees all over the world – protecting water, offsetting carbon emissions, and reducing air pollution.

A Global Commitment

Today, many forests are under threat from climate change, human encroachment, and extraction of natural resources. At UPS, we are committed to doing more for the environment. That's why we planted more than 15 million trees on five continents – from Angeles National Forest in California to the Boreal Forests in Europe, Canada, and China. And, we're Committed to More™.

Conserving our global forests is imperative to maintaining balance in the atmosphere, preserving biodiversity, and protecting a host of other vital ecological processes.

Who we're supporting:

Learn more at ups.com/sustainability

SOURCES: ¹epa.gov | ²arborday.org | ³earthday.org

*All equivalences presented are estimates and do not represent actual or verified benefits associated with this initiative.

© 2013-2015 United Parcel Service of America, Inc. UPS, the UPS brandmark, and the color brown are trademarks of United Parcel Service of America, Inc. All rights reserved.